Published every week-day afternoon.
 Subscriptions: One year, $3; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.
 Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Entered at the Postoffice at Barre as Second Class Matter.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1908.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

4,750

It looks like Bryan with a sledge-hammer at Denver.

If "Farmer Roosevelt" were a candidate again, he could easily win the agricultural vote after his strenuous haying operations at Oyster Bay.

The Newport Express and Standard puts in a splendid bid for summer patronage of Lake Memphremagog with a handsome illustrated sketch of the Lake Memphremagog yacht club with last week's issue.

Since the nomination by the Republican party amounts to an election over in Orange county, we may at this time congratulate Attorney Stanley C. Wilson of Chelsea, who has been nominated for state's attorney and hope for Attorney Frank S. Williams of Bradford better things next time.

BEAUTIFUL BENJAMIN FALLS.

The Barre and Montpelier electric railroad is gradually assuming control of the unoccupied territory along the line between the two cities, its owners, no doubt, having an eye to the growth of the twin communities which shall cause building operations to boom in the section intervening. It now has, or some of its owners have, control of a large portion of the remaining property which is suitable for residential purposes; and by the most recent acquisition it has secured also one of the most popular natural parks to be found anywhere hereabouts. Beautiful Benjamin Falls, with its miniature cascades, its rushing stream and its deep shades, is an ideal picnic ground which the general public of the two cities long since discovered and utilized. It is likely, too, that later the railroad company will improve the natural beauties of the place by putting in park facilities. The suggestion is perhaps unnecessary, but we feel like putting in a word for the preservation of the territory directly contiguous to the stream just as nature designed it. There is a wilderness, yet withal a beauty, about the falls themselves that appeals impressively to the sense of the artistic; and any steps to change them would mar the handiwork of nature irreparably. Hence, the suggestion. On other parts of the preserve there is abundant opportunity for making whatever improvements may be considered necessary. But the falls and the territory around them should be kept as nature framed them, a picture of unmatched beauty.

TURN OUT THE GALLERIES.

To the New York Sun we give credit for a very commendable suggestion in connection with the Republican national convention and possibly with the Democratic national convention; and that is, a demand for abolishment of the galleries, whose breaches upon common decency were noted at the recent convention in Chicago. The particular instance which the contemporary refers to was during the period when Governor Hanley of Indiana was striving to nominate Vice-President Fairbanks for president. The contemporary well says:

"The disgraceful, organized rowdiness of the galleries at the Chicago convention yesterday shows the necessity of reforming the mob out of existence on these occasions. Technically guests, the harebrained enthusiasts up aloft act as if it were their right to try and impose their will on the silent, helpless delegates on the floor. The danger of the present circus arrangement lies in the fact that it is possible for the individual who has got control of the committee to pack the benches of the spectators with shouters and stamperers, and actually deprive the proposers of candidates of the opportunity to place the names of their men with any decency. Gov. Hanley, the spokesman of the great state of Indiana, was insulted and reviled yesterday to an unheard-of degree. The galleries abolished, the national conventions would cease to suggest a collection of yahoos, or whirling dervishes, and would be once more truly deliberative assemblies."

Some conventions have their quota of unprincipled, unpledged and open-minded delegates, ready to be shown which one is the best man, and in cases where the contest is close a great deal depends upon the impressions which these delegates gather during the convention. A prejudiced mob of howlers for any particular candidate, or, as the contemporary suggests, a crowd of paid rosters, is capable of making such a demonstration as to completely cloud the distinctive merits of a candidate on the other side, and we may nominate a candidate on noise rather than on real conviction among the delegates. The suggestion of the New York contemporary is well put, it seems to us.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Next week is convention week in Vermont, Republican convention week, and it is safe to assume that the party in convention following the precedent of two years ago will give the state a platform made up of planks that will make for progress. Unless it does this it will be untrue to itself and disappointing to large numbers of loyal citizens of Vermont.

Some of the things with which the platform will have to do are likely to be the following:

A change in taxation laws.

A public utility commission, to include all present commissions.

Requiring the publication of campaign expenses.

Amending the local option law where ever possible.

Reforms in the judiciary.

A call for supervision of schools and highways that means supervision.

Arranging for a change in representation in the state legislature.

Urging a larger and better exploitation of the state's physical side.

Insisting upon the use of newspapers instead of bill boards for the promulgation of public notices.

Unequivocal and hearty support of the nominees of the party not only at Chicago but at Burlington, St. Johnsbury, and Montpelier.

These are only a few of the things that suggest themselves as planks in a platform that should be meaty and that should appeal to the sound common sense of every self respecting citizen of the commonwealth of Vermont, regardless of their party affiliations.—Fair Haven Era.

Brattleboro's Local Fight.

The outcome of the caucus in Brattleboro Tuesday evening means without doubt that Ernest W. Gibson will be senator from this end of the county in the legislature of 1908. His victory over William H. Vinton was the result of a carefully conducted canvass which brought out one of the largest votes ever recorded at a local caucus. Mr. Vinton's supporters made a game battle and the showing they made was unusual considering the fact that they were unorganized up to within the last few days. As a matter of fact there were no very great issues at stake and although The Reformer would have preferred to see Mr. Vinton the nominee it has no doubt that Mr. Gibson will represent this country ably and conscientiously. Perhaps he will be more free to act impartially if he surrenders the Boston and Maine pass which his opponents claim he carries; perhaps he was never fortunate enough to have one, who knows. On the whole we believe Mr. Gibson will accomplish as much for Brattleboro and the county in the next legislature as any other man could hope to. To be sure, he is not as great a legislator as some of his statements would indicate, but he has had considerable experience at Montpelier and knows what it is to be torn by opposing constituents.—Brattleboro Reformer.

NORTHFIELD.

Arthur Allard and Miss Edith Laforest Married.

Miss Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Laforest, and Arthur Allard were married at the Catholic church yesterday forenoon at nine o'clock, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. P. O'Neill. Miss Lillian Laforest, the bride's sister, acted as bridesmaid and Arthur Prevost of Northfield Falls was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Allard went south on the noon train followed by the good wishes of many friends and the customary shower of rice.

And So—

"And so you play bridge only for fun?"
 "Of course," answered Mrs. Spangleton. "But it isn't any fun unless you are playing for money."—Washington Star.

The Poets.

"But your Western life," said Miss Kulcher, "is close to nature. I should think you'd be fond of the poets."
 "But, ma'am," said Mr. Lariat, of Montana, "I don't understand 'em; I met a poet once and he wouldn't take a drink."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Too Late.

"A man told me this morning I looked like the image of you."
 "Where is the fool? I'll thrash the life out of him!"
 "Too late. I killed him."—Judge.

Everything Else.

 Crumbsack—No; but I guess I've seen everything else come up!—Yonkers Statesman.

All But One.

A man who was "wanted" in Russia had been photographed in six different positions, and the pictures were duly circulated among the police departments. The chief of one of these wrote to headquarters a few days after the issue of the set of portraits, reporting as follows: "I have received the portraits of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."—Harper's Weekly.

LIKES SHEATH GOWN.

Baron Takahira Says It's Fine, Comfortable and Graceful.

Chicago, June 30.—Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador at Washington, is in Chicago with his wife and daughter, who arrived from Seattle yesterday morning. They will depart soon and take up their residence in the embassy. The daughter, who is 14 years old, will enter a school in Washington.

"What do you think of the Directoire gown which some of the American women have adopted?" Baron Takahira was asked.

"It is fine and comfortable, and gives the woman a graceful appearance. It is lighter and better suited than kimono and other silk costumes with big sleeves worn by the women of Japan. See how uncomfortable I am in this heavy coat and vest. I wish the men had something like the sheath gown," he replied.

DECISION AGAINST THAW.

Justice Dowling Says He Should Be Retained at Matteawan.

New York, June 30.—Justice Dowling yesterday denied the application of Harry K. Thaw to be removed from the Matteawan asylum to some other institution. The decision says, "If after sufficient observation, it is proper to remove him to some other institution, the state authorities can so act."

Justice Dowling's order is not operative for the present at least, as Thaw is now in custody under the order of Justice Mills by reason of writ of habeas corpus on which he was taken to court in White Plains to-day. Justice Dowling's decision further declares that Thaw is a dangerous insane person, "who is not to be punished but to be kept under proper restraint that he may injure neither himself or anyone else," and says the affidavits submitted set forth absolutely no reason why the change desired should be made.

CUMMINS MAY RESIGN.

Governor Sees No Hope for Getting Into the Senate.

Des Moines, Ia., June 30.—Gov. A. B. Cummins contemplates resigning to resume the practice of law. Progressive party leaders are urging him not to do so.

Governor Cummins said Sunday night when asked about the matter, "I have not taken up the matter for final consideration."

Since the Republican state convention last week, Governor Cummins has learned that even in the event of a vacancy in Senator Allison's seat, Carroll, the Republican candidate for governor, would not appoint him to the vacancy.

It is this discovery, it is said, that has led Governor Cummins to contemplate a resignation.

An Immodest Theatre.

At the layers' club in New York a prompter said of the later Peter Daily: "He had the sunniest, cheeriest disposition. Once I toured with him. The accommodations were sometimes rather rough, and on such occasions the true gold in the man showed forth."

"In a little Southern town the dressing rooms were awful. Everybody swore and raged, but Daily restored them to good humor. Said he: 'Why this is nothing to what I have been up against at times. I played once in a theatre where at the end of every act, the stage manager had to come forward and say: 'I must ask the ladies and gentlemen in the audience to be good enough to turn around. The players are about to change their costumes.'"

Washington Star.

Robert T. Lincoln of Chicago, accompanied by his secretary, H. A. Matthews has arrived at his summer home in Manchester for the summer.
